Due to a stubborn throat ailment, popular blues hip-hop act G. Love and Special Sauce was forced to cancel its upcoming Wednesday night show at Cain's Ballroom, said a statement released Monday morning.

The show will be rescheduled for a later date, it said.

"I have been benched by my voice doctor so that I do not do any long-term damage to my vocal chords," said

Garrett Dutton, aka G. Love, in a Monday morning email.

"In all the 15 years I've been touring I've only missed a handful of shows so you know it is killing me to do this."

A scheduled performance in Flagstaff, Ariz., was also canceled.

"I'm sorry to put you through the hassle of getting your refunds and the whole nine. ... When I'm better I will be back to play for you all," he promised.

Chad Rodgers, Cain's Ballroom general manager, said, "We will try our best to get him rescheduled as soon as possible."

Call (866) 443-8849 for ticket refunds.
